RECENT ACCESSIONS

ADHESIVES

PERRY, THOMAS D. MODERN WOOD ADHESIVES. New York, Pitman 1944. 208 p.
309 P42.

"More than any other natural product, veneers and plywoods have made headlong progress in volume and value during recent years. If you want ideas, data, methods, answers to problems, here is your guidepost to industrial progress." --Book Jacket

FORESTRY

HARRAR, ELLWOOD S. GUIDE TO SOUTHERN TREES. New York, McGraw-Hill 1946.
712 p. 455.5 H23.

"This book describes more than 350 arborescent species indigenous to that great region in the United States lying South of the Mason and Dixon line, the Ohio River, and the extension of the Missouri-Arkansas boundary to the Western limits of the southern forests. Included are notes of unusual interests and historical significance pertaining to many of the trees described together with pertinent information on the usage of valuable products, other than lumber, derived from the leaves, flowers, fruit, wood, or bark of all of them." --Preface

WAHLENBERG, WILLIAM G. LONGLEAF PINE. Washington, D.C. Charles Lathrop Pack Forestry Foundation. 1946. 429 p. 99.35 W12.

This book deals with one of the most interesting problems in American forestry and, with the respect to the need for information, perhaps the most important one in the South. Those who deal with longleaf are confused by conflicting or incomplete recommendations, varied treatments, and inconsistent results in regenerating the species. This is a complete study of longleaf pine its use, ecology, regeneration, protection, growth, and management.

FOOD

ASHEROOK, FRANK G. COOKING WILD GAME. New York, Orange Judd Pub. Co., 1945.
358 p. 389.25 As3

Meat from forest, field and stream and how to prepare it for the table.
432 recipes.

RAWLINGS, MARJORIE K. CROSS CREEK COOKERY. New York, Scribner's Sons. 1942.
230 p. 389.25 R19.

This is not a cook book in the traditional manner, but it does contain over 250 recipes and some 30 menus, with drawings by Robert Camp.

SCHULTZ, THEODORE W. FOOD FOR THE WORLD. Chicago, University of Chicago Press. 1945. 352 p. 389 Sch8.

"This book effectively reviews the current situation and offers insight into operations on the high staff level-as distinguished from the final determination of policy by responsible legislatures and executives. The reader may derive considerable confidence from the competence of the participants; but he will almost certainly share their concern about the task ahead."--Book Jacket

SENSE, ELEANOR. NUTRITION WITH SENSE. New York, M.Barrows & Co., 1944. 222 p. 389.1 Se5N.

"Since the publication date of America's Nutrition Primer, the predecessor of this present book, many changes have occurred in the field of nutrition. Two new phases have been introduced: the influence of economics and agriculture on nutrition." -- Preface.

TANNER, FRED W. THE MICROBIOLOGY OF FOODS. Ed. 2. Champaign, Ill. Garrard, 1944. 1195 p. 389.3 T152 Ed. 2.

"Since publication of the first edition of this book, many advances have been made in the science of bacteriology and especially in its application to foods. These have made it necessary to rewrite the book. The subjects of mycology and microbiology have been greatly expanded. Since it is intended that this book be a source book to the literature as well as to the methods of analysis, much of the recent literature has been revised. References are at the bottom of the pages containing the context which they support." --Preface.

GARDENING

FARRINGTON, EDWARD I. THE GARDENER'S ALMANAC. New York, Oxford University Press. 1945. 146 p. 90.04 F24 Ed.5.

"Garden work from January to December. Included in each month's work is information about all branches of gardening, including not only flowers but fruits, vegetables, trees, shrubs, and lawns." -- Book Jacket.

FOGG, JOHN M. WEEDS OF LAWN AND GARDEN; A HANDBOOK FOR EASTERN TEMPERATE NORTH AMERICA. Philadelphia, University of Pennsylvania press. 1945. 215 p. 79 F68.

The introduction to the handbook discusses the problem of weeds in general: What is a weed? Why some plants are weeds; The dispersal of weeds; The geographic origin of weeds; Extermination of weeds; Chemical controls; Weeds as soil indicators. Illustrations by Leonie Hagerty.

MORSE, HARRIET. GARDENING IN THE SHADE; PLANTING THE SHADED GARDEN WITH SHRUBS AND HERBACEOUS PERENNIALS. New York, Scribner's Sons. 1939. 205 p. 97.2 M83
Contents: Shade and its variations; night reverie and who's who in the shade; a directory to plants.

ORTLOFF, HENRY S. GARDEN PLANNING AND BUILDING. Garden City, N.Y. The American Garden Guild Inc., Doubleday, Doran & Co., Inc. 1945. 282 p. Revised edition. 98 Or8.

"In this book emphasis have been placed on methods of construction of the permanent garden features, telling the property owner how to locate his house; how to plan and build drives; paths, and terraces; how to arrange and make gardens and borders; how to design and construct a pool or pond; how to build walls, steps, or embankments that will be both good looking and lasting."--Preface.

WELCH, AUSTIN. PLOW NOT, WEED NOT, AND REALLY ENJOY YOUR GARDEN. Canaan, N.H. 1945. 28 p. 91.15 W44.

"This book describes four test gardens grown during the summer of 1944. They were small because of the almost universal doubts of all others. The four gardens are described individually with their corresponding photographs.

WORK, PAUL. VEGETABLE PRODUCTION AND MARKETING. New York, Wiley & sons Inc., 1945. 559 p. 91 W89.

"This book deals with the production, management, and marketing of vegetable crops. It has been prepared primarily for students and teachers of agriculture in high schools, technical institutes, junior colleges and colleges. Nor have the needs of actual farmers, home gardeners, and those engaged in agencies and business serving vegetable growers been overlooked. The chapters have been arranged in logical sequence for the comprehensive study of production problems in both home gardening and commercial farming, and of economic and marketing problems as well."--Preface.

HEALTH

CAVINS, H.M. NATIONAL HEALTH AGENCIES. Washington, D.C. Public Affairs Press. 1945. 251 p. 449.1 C31.

"Some of the oldest voluntary organizations are reviewed, for two reasons: partly for their own inherent interest, but principally because they conditioned and formed a part of the background out of which the promotional type agencies arose." --Preface.

GOLDMAN, FRANZ. PUBLIC MEDICAL CARE: PRINCIPLES AND PROBLEMS. New York, Columbia University Press. 1945. 226 p. 448 G561P.

"This book deals with community health activities supported by taxation and administered by government agencies. It is an attempt to give a composite picture of public medical care as a social movement." -- Book Jacket.

HEALTH PROGRAM CONFERENCE. PRINCIPLES OF A NATION-WIDE HEALTH PROGRAM. New York 1944. 34 p. 448.9 H34.

"The purpose of this conference is to formulate the elements of a nation-wide health program which will unite the views of physicians, economists, and administrators." --Foreword.

MUSTARD, HARRY S. GOVERNMENT IN PUBLIC HEALTH. New York, The Commonwealth Fund, 1945. 219 p. 449.1 M97.

"This is the story of the development of public health service in the United States. The author traces its development from social and governmental standpoints rather than from the technical side." --Book Jacket.

MUSTARD, HARRY S. RURAL HEALTH PRACTICE. New York, The Commonwealth Fund. 1936 603 p. 449.15 M97R.

"Out of some 20 years' experience in public health practice in federal, state, city, and county work, and in connection with foundations and universities, Dr. Mustard has developed this comprehensive handbook for the health officer in rural areas and small cities." --Book Jacket.

SHADID, MICHAEL A. A DOCTOR FOR THE PEOPLE. New York, 1939. 308 p. 120 Sh12 Edition 2.

"An autobiography of the founder of America's first co-operative hospital. The story of a great triumph achieved by one small man, with little support beyond that of his own courage and intelligence, and how he successfully defended it against the attacks of the medical trust." -- Publisher

SOUTHMAYD, HENRY J. SMALL COMMUNITY HOSPITALS. New York. The Commonwealth Fund. 1944. 182 p. 449.15 C73.

"This book is the fruit of extensive collaboration. It reflects experience shared by more than a dozen small communities and the Commonwealth Fund. For many years the Commonwealth Fund has devoted much of its efforts and resources to undertakings in the field of health, particularly public health service, and the development of rural hospitals. In all of these activities the Fund has been concerned primarily with the quality of service rendered, and it believes and it believes that this interest has been its most useful contribution to current progress." --Foreword.

PERSONNEL ADMINISTRATION

HALSEY, GEORGE D. SUPERVISING PEOPLE. New York, Harper 1946. 233 p. 249.3 H16S
The author of this book is Personnel Officer of the Farm Credit Administration Columbia, S.C. and well qualified to supply straightforward statements of all the phases of supervising people. The book is designed to be used either as a text for group study or individual self-help.

LAIRD, DONALD A. THE TECHNIQUE OF BUILDING PERSONNEL LEADERSHIP. New York, McGraw-Hill. 1944. 239 p. 140 L14Te

"This is the second of Dr. Laird's series of technique books, and he explores what goes into making men of great personal magnetism. He shows that personality characteristics can be acquired." --Book Jacket.

LAIRD, DONALD A. THE TECHNIQUE OF HANDLING PEOPLE. New York, McGraw-Hill 1943. 139 p. 140 L14T.

"This book gives practical advice on the technique of handling people, and shows in quickly understandable fashion how to use the psychology of success. and leadership."

STARCH, DANIEL. HOW TO DEVELOP YOUR EXECUTIVE ABILITY. New York, 1943. 267 p. 249.3 St2 Ed. 6.

"This book is an important answer to the question of strong leadership in both business and government. It is drawn from the experience of 150 successful executives, in the organization of thought and turning thought into action."

STIGERS, M.F. THE THEORY AND PRACTICE OF JOB RATING. New York, McGraw-Hill 1944 168 p. 249.3 St2 Ed.2.

"In the first edition of this text the authors pointed out that in their approach to the procedure of job rating, no claim was made that their plan was one hundred per cent complete or that their plan as presented was a perfect measuring device. They did and do now believe that the plan as presented in the first edition furnished the most accurate results of any plan then in existence. In the two years that have passed since their text was published, the authors have continued their efforts to improve their plan of job rating. The number and extent of these improvements, mainly in the form of additions to present material, warranted the publication of a second edition. A better rating scale for the element strength has been constructed." --Preface

SANITATION

PHILLIPS, E.B. STREAM SANITATION. New York, Wiley 1944. 276 p. 292 P51.

"The author has discussed some of the principle interests that have been developed in streams from the single viewpoint of sanitation. But even thus restricted, the field is broad, and this is an adequate discussion of our present -day scientific knowledge of the sanitation of streams." --Preface.

SHOPWORK

BONERT, JOHN. SOLDERING FOR WORKSHOP, FARM AND HOME. New York, Orange Judd. 1941. 111 p. 294 B 64.

JONES, M.M. SHOPWORK ON THE FARM. New York, McGraw-Hill. 1945. 486 p. 58 J72S.

"This book is intended primarily for the use of vocational agriculture students and other farm youth, who will be the farmers of tomorrow, and for college students taking their first course in shopwork. A textbook that can be used to supplement the work of the instructor is an invaluable teaching aid. It is to provide such an aid that this book has been prepared."

ROEHL, LOUIS M. THE FARMER'S SHOP BOOK. Rev. 8th. ed. Milwaukee, Bruce Pub. Co., 1945. 446 p. 58 R62F Ed.8.

"Because of the shortage of farm labor and the difficulty and expense of hiring craftsmen, it is becoming more and more necessary that the farmer do his own construction and repair work and utilize labor saving devices. With that thought in mind many changes and additions in the Farmer's Shop Book have been made." --Introduction

T.V.A.

COLLINS, FREDERICK L. UNCLE SAM'S BILLION-DOLLAR BABY; A TAXPAYER LOOKS AT TVA. New York, Putman 1945. 174 p. 280.002 C69.

"The author is an experienced reporter on varied aspects of American life. To give this report he familiarized himself with the great government power projects, made a series of visits to power plants operated under business management, and interviewed many leaders in the industry. The result is an informative and challenging, essential reading for every citizen."--Book Jacket FINER, HERMAN. THE T.V.A.; LESSONS FOR INTERNATIONAL APPLICATION. Montreal 1944. 289 p. 280.002 F49.

"The TVA was established in the United States at a time of economic distress, in the gravest world-wide economic depression the world has ever recorded. It came into being when governments were taking the desperate course of restricting production and destroying produce in the hope of restoring economic welfare. It represented an economic policy of hope and expansion in which the government would play a dynamic part. It is important to know what the TVA is and what it has accomplished and what its problems and difficulties have been; and to consider under what conditions and by what adaptation its experience may be applicable elsewhere, particularly in an international setting." -- Preface.

WOODCRAFT

DANK, M.C. CREATIVE CRAFTS IN WOOD. Peoria, Ill., Manual Arts 1945. 200 p.
317 D23.

"For those who are just beginning to explore the wonderland of craftwood, and for those many others who realize the value of doing everything the right way whether they have craft experience or not, Creative Crafts in Wood contains full details on primary skills and techniques, described and illustrated one by one and applied to problems in copying saw work, wood chipping, and wood stippling."
